Matters this region partake of the stir and bustle which everywhere is now characteristic of the American army. Men may praise or blame Secretary Stanton as they will, one thing is certain—since his assuming his official station there has been activity, sadly wanting before, and a success which had not previously attended our arms. When the history of this war is written, and the full knowledge of the position of things at this crisis understood, his new detractors will either be silent or loud in his new detractors will either be silent or loud in his was done in good order, their camp and stores have not previously attended our arms. When the fall knowledge of the position of things at this crisis understood, his provided to retreat across the river, which is praise. The secret of most of the hostility entertained sgainst him to-day is that he requires activity in military commanders, and some are slow to appreciate that; and he adds to this offense another yet more himselve he is no respected of human Slavery, nor very hopeful or desirous of preserving it and the Union likewise. The rebellion and Slavery are Siamese twins, and it is a difficult problem, impossible probably in solution, how to destroy "Chang," and "Day" yet live.

I find matters at Norfolk but little changed from what they were when I left it a few weeks since. Secssionism is more quiet but not less bliter. The women, mismaned ladies, and dispraining woman-hood itself, continue to insult our soldiery, relying on the immunity from punishment their sex receives. Gen. Butler's order, rightly interpreted, would done have been done to be should be shrewdness and wit in resenting these cowardly meaded by two soldiers, gathered hastly her robe close to her side to prevent her gurments being pollated by touching a soldier's court. The solder's and provided in the merchanic stall catch it from her. "The Seeche finale looked and the side of the transition of her folly, more by a similar. Seeche woman passing by two soldiers, and then the repertation of her folly, marked into the attreet to avoid contact with him. Ecrouse me Madam," said the soldier, "that I am a Union soldier and not a Seces's soldier, such as you have been used to, and so I am not lonsy."

The females are getting tired of their violent and ally demonstrations, though they yet persati in them, even spitting from their windows on some officers who pass. I know how difficult it its to deal with such Rebels who forget there ex, and with it forget deceny itself; but if they forget that they ever were ladies, can they complain if occasionally we forget it likewise? A Union paper has been in my hearing to be Secessionists. O that we migh learn that in the Rebel dictionary "conciliation" is a synonym for imbecility, and that indulgence is translated as cowardice! The iron band is the hand they will kiss; the strong arm alone secures their submission. War means fighting, and a conquered people are not the masters. These seem truisms, but they are but dimly discerned as yet.

In both Norfolk and Portsmouth the currency is utterly deranged. The Rebels will not take bills from layed Strates and we decline their ship, whaters atterly deranged. The Rebels will not take bills from loval States, and we decline their shin-plasters. Trade is therefore at a stand-still, while the gold and silver spent by the soldiers for little trifles is quickly absorbed and hoarded by the population so long deprived of it. Strawberries and cherries are abundant to-day, at a shilling a quart, and such of us as can are luxuriating accordingly. Good oysters are abundant, but if the sellers thereof are as bitter. Secessionists as the man at the corner, in whose place I bought some to-day, the trade ought not to Secessionists as the man at the corner, in whose place I bought some to-day, the trade ought not to be very brisk.

Suffolk is a dead town—killed by the rebellion. It bears evidences of former prosperity to a degree unusual at the South, but its inhabitants are far from loyal to-day. Coming from Boston in Suffolk County, Mass., where our common was but yester-day alive with enthusiastic soldiers flocking to their country's defense, I find the change to Suffolk, Va., where patriotism and loyalty are almost dead, except as they live in the hearts of our soldiers, a very marked and strong contrast. Capt. Richardson of the 18th Massachusetts Regiment is Provost-Marshal here, and he is strict and unyielding, and at there is a sensible improvement since his advent. Col. Wyman, Military commandant, believes in enforcing obedience and respect to military rule, as well among citizens as soldiers, and the effect is very salutary.

I have to-day visited Fortress Monroe, some fifty miles from here, and seen the sick and wounded in our hespitals. Twelve hundred wounded soldiers were sent from Richmond to the Fortrese vesterday, many of whom are yet on board the Vanderbilt. All here are doing what they can to alleviate their sufferings, but let me assure the public that supplies are yet needed, and are very useful and welcome. The Norfolk Naval Hoepital I visited yesterday; it has been put into perfect order, is admirably planned and beautifully located. While I was there the first installment of patients was received, and their comfort attended to. None better deserve kindness, attention, love, than these brave, dear, wounded and

THE ENGAGEMENT AT FRONT

Gen. Banks's Official Report of the Engagement at Front Royal, May 23, 1862. (BADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE SPENANDOAH, May 31, 1861.

Hon. EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War

Hen. Enwis M. Stanton, Scretary of War.

Sir: In pursuance of orders from the War Department, Col. John R. Kenly, commanding 1st Maryland Volunteers, was sent on the 16th day of May from Strasburg to Front Royal, with instructions to retain the troops under Major Tyndale, attached Gen. Geary's command, and to protect the town of Front Royal and the railroad and bridges between that town and Strasburg.

The forces under his command consisted of his own regiment (775 available men), two companies from the 25th Pennsylvania Volunteers, Lieut. Col. Perham commanding; the Pionser corps, Captain Mapes, engaged in constructing bridges; two companies of the 5th New-York Cavalry, and a section of Knapp's battery, Lieut. Atwell commanding. There were three companies of infantry stationed on the road near Strasburg—the 2d Massachusetts, Capt. Russell, at the Bridge; one company of the 3d Wisconsin, Capt. Hubbard, and one company of the 2th Indiana, about five miles from Strasburg.

This force was intended as a guard for the protection of the town, and partly against local guerrilla parties that infested that locality, and replaced two companies of infantry with cavalry and artillery, which had occupied the town for some weeks, under Maj. Tindale, 28th Pennsylvania Volunteers, for the same purpose. It had never been contemplated as a defense against the combined forces of the enemy in the Valley of Virginia.

Front Royal is in itself an indefensible position.

Such forces were not at my disposal, and no such expectations were entertained from the slender command of Col. Kenly. It was a guerrilla force, and not an organized and well-appointed army that he was prepared to meet. On the 22d of May, it was discovered that the

On the 22d of May, it was discovered that the whole force of the enemy was in movement, down the valley of the Shenandoah, between the Massanutten Mountain and the Blue Ridge, and in close proximity to the town. Their cavalry had captured a considerable number of our pickets before the alarm was given. The little hand which was character with the vectories of alarm was given. The little hand which was charged with the protection of the rairoad and bridges, found itself instantaneously compelled to choose between an immediate retreat or a contest with the enemy, against overwhelming numbers. Col. Kenly was not the man to avoid a contest, at Whatever odds.

He immediately drew up his troops in the order he had contemplated in case of an attack of less importance. About 1 o clock p. m., the alarm was given that the enemy was advancing on the town in force. The in alry companies were drawn up in line of battle about one-half of a mile in the rear of the town. Five companies were detailed to support the artillery, which was placed on the creet of a hill companding a meadow of some extent, over which the

ANOTHER INVASION OF MISSOURL

ANOTHER INVASION OF MISSOURI.

A new sensition has been produced by intelligence received by Gen. Blant, commanding the Department of Kansas, to the effect that 12,000 Rebels, including Indians, are now marching northward from Arkansas. It is stated that this army has been formed by combining the remnants of McCulloch's and McIntosh's old force, and by new enlistments and conscriptions, the whole being got together by Gov. Rector. Rains, Schauwait, and Coffey are the Generals reported to be in charge of these columns, and it is further said that the expedition is provided with 25 pieces of artillery. Geh. Blunt's information is that it was the design of the Rebels to rendezvous at Fort Smith on the 30th of May, and from thence enter Missouri in McDonald County, which is 75 miles from Fort Smith.

It seems to be the understanding of the Secessionists of our State, especially since the evacuation of Corinth, that another effort is to be made by Rebel soldiery this Summer to gain a foot-hold in Missouri, and for two or three days past rumors have been in circulation among that class, of an advance on Springfield, by Rains and Albert Pike.

We are not disposed to treat the information received by Gen. Blunt as altogether without foundation, though we are by no means worked into any state of alarm from it. The appearance at present is that the late army assembled at Corinth has been disrupted and scattered, and it would not be surprising if a number of fugitives had crossed over into Arkansas, though great inducements would probably have to be offered before they could be prevailed on to continue in the military service. Whatever organized force Gen. Price could muster would perhaps return to the old contest rather than be transferred to distant fields, either South or East. So we may consider that the reports coming from Arkansas, whether true in all respects, or not, have at least some appearance of plausibility.

It is not likely that any such numbers as twelve thousand armed Rebels has been already concentrated

THE THEATRES.

There was, on Monday night, an extraordinary affluence of novelties at the theatres, for the Summer season; four, besides the benefit at Wallack's, make an immense draught on the capabilities of the public, supposed to be weakened by the long attack of Winter amusements. Added to this, the Academy of Music will open on Wednesday, with operas. If New-York can sustain liberally all these in the warm weather, it shows solidity of no ordinary kind in the resident population, and indicates the presence of a crowd of travelers at the hotels, not lessened by the war.

We shall not attempt to day to dispose of the theatrical crush for the season, beyond noticing the entertainment of Mr. Anderson, at the Winter Garden, which was first in the field in the matter of an
